

Does Your Dog's Story Belong in a Book?

Happy Tails Books is collecting stories about adopted Beagles for the next book in the "Lost Souls: FOUND!" series, and they want to hear from you!

Each book in this wonderful series highlights the love and joy adopted dogs bring to their new homes. The books contain several sections to entertain and education readers including: short stories (600-1200 words), paragraph-long anecdotes, behavioral and medical challenges (and how they were solved), recipes, and poems. Detailed submission guidelines and a story submission form are located at <http://happytailsbooks.com/submit.htm>.

Happy Tails Books welcomes stories from writers of all ability levels and from foster and forever homes alike. Stories should be emotional (funny, happy, sad, thought-provoking) and have a clear point. They are also seeking professional-quality photographs for the book cover.

Each story submitted or book purchased earns points for our rescue which turn into a donation at the end of each year, so please support this project.

At <http://happytailsbooks.com>, you can:

- Read the story submission guidelines
- Send in your story
- Pick up a book (A great gift for dog lovers!)
- Download the "Mill Dog Manifesto," a free eBook about the dog industry
- Read the "Don't Kill Bill Blog" about life as a foster parent and the "Advocacy Blog" featuring people who are making a difference for abused and neglected animals

The submission deadline for stories about Beagles and Beagle-mixes is June 15th, however earlier submissions get first consideration for inclusion. Please send over your story to <http://happytailsbooks.com/submit.htm> as soon as you can!
